Which Addreſs Her Majeſty received very graciouſly.

St. James's, June 2. Colonel Wade is arrived here Expreſs from the Lord Galway, with the following Relation of the Battle of Almanza.

In a General Council of War held at Valentia in December, for the Operations of the enſuing Campaign, his Catholick Majeſty being preſent, it was agreed, That all the Forces, as likewiſe thoſe that were expected with the Earl Rivers, ſhould act in one Body, and enter Caſtile by the Way of Arragon, where the Paſſage of the Tagus was moſt practicable; but, for the Preſervation of the Kingdom of Valentia, the Army ſhould take the Field early, and endeavour to deſtroy the Enemy's Magazines on that Frontier; as likewiſe to take ſome Fortreſſes for their Security when our Army ſhould march away, and, if poſſible, to fall on ſome Body of the Enemy's Troops before their whole Force was aſſembled. The Earl of Galway, the more to ſtrengthen our Army, ſent Orders to the Lord Tirawly's Regiment, and the Two Battalions of Marines, (who were quartered in Catalonia) to march and join him; but the Viceroy would not ſuffer them to march from their Quarters, or part with any Troops out of the Province, without the King's Order, which was often ſolicited, but could not be obtained. His Majeſty was pleaſed towards the end of February to declare to the Generals of the Allies his Intention of going into Catalonia, and a few Days after proceeded on his Journey thither, and took with him the Regiment of Dragoons of Zinzendorf, conſiſting of 5 Squadrons, with Count Falais's Regiment of Dutch Foot. His Majeſty was then pleaſed to declare, That whenever it was thought proper to march to Madrid, he would be ready to join them with the Troops from Catalonia.

All the Forces that could be brought into the Field amounted to 42 Battalions of Foot, and 53 Squadrons, Engliſh, Dutch and Portugueſe, making about 4500 Horſe, and 11000 Foot, effective: With this Body the Marquis das Minas and the Earl of Galway took the Field the 6th of April, N. S. and having with very good Succeſs deſtroy'd the Enemy's Magazines at Caudete, Yela, and Montalegre, and forced ſeveral Bodies of the Enemy's Troops to retire further into Caſtile, returned with the Army to Villena, and laid Siege to the Caſtle of that Place: But before the Breach was acceſſible, the Enemy's Army join'd at Almanza, conſiſting of 76 Squadrons of Horſe, and 54 Battalions of Foot, tho' the Accounts we had of their Numbers were various and uncertain: We were informed, that their Deſign was to attempt the Relief of Villena, or to cut off our Communication with Valentia, from whence we received all our Proviſions. The Duke of Orleans was then on his Way to join the Enemy's Army, and 7 or 8000 of the French Forces were on their March to reinforce them: On the contrary, our Army was daily diminiſhed by Sickneſs, eſpecially the Troops that came laſt from England. We had no Proſpect of being join'd by the Troops from Catalonia, his Majeſty having declar'd his Intention to march with the Body of Troops he had with him to the Frontiers of Rouſſillon. Beſides that, the Magazines in Valentia were exhauſted; ſo that the neceſſity of fighting or retiring into Catalonia was unavoidable. If the latter had been reſolved upon, the Kingdom of Valentia muſt have been expos'd to the Fury of an incens'd Enemy. On the 24th of April, N. S. a Council of War was called, wherein it was unanimouſly agreed to march and attack the Enemy: We accordingly marched the next Day in Four Columns towards Almanza. Upon the appearance of our Vanguard, the Enemy immediately ſtruck their Tents, and form'd in Line of Battle, having the Town of Almanza in the Rear of their ſecond Line, a little to the Right of the Centre. We enter'd the [illegible] about Noon, and our Army form'd in Line of Battle [illegible] continued our March till within a Mile of the Enemy, where our Lines halted to eaſe the Soldiers, who had been marching ſince break of Day. The Earl of Galway, to ſupply our want of Cavalry, had interlined a Brigade of Foot with each Wing of Horſe: But the Enemy having drawn from their Left ſome Squadrons to reinforce their Right Wing, the Lord Tirawly, who commanded at the Left Wing, order'd the Portugueſe Horſe of the Left of the Rear Line, commanded by the Count de Attalaya, to double into our Firſt Line, to make an equal Front with the Enemy. About 3 in the Afternoon the Earl of Galway poſted himſelf at the Head of the Engliſh Dragoons, and march'd to begin the Battle with the Enemy's Right Wing of Horſe; the Portugueſe being order'd to take the Charge as it ſhould come to them gradually from the Left, but not before the Engliſh and Dutch were actually engaged. The Enemy, while we were marching on, began to play upon us from a Battery on a riſing Ground, a little in the Front of their Right; but our Troops preſſing on to come to a cloſe Engagement, the Cannon of either ſide did little Execution. Colonel Dormer was order'd with a Detachment of Dragoons to attack the Battery; but before he got thither, the Enemy retired with their Guns in great Precipitation. As ſoon as our Left Wing was advanc'd within 100 Paces of the Enemy's Horſe, they likewiſe advanc'd out of their Line to meet our Charge, and the Engagement was very obſtinate and bloody on both ſides. The Enemy, by the Weight of their Squadrons, forc'd ours to retreat about 50 Paces; but Colonel Southwell's and Wade's Regiments of Foot, who were on the Left of that Brigade, which was interlined with the Horſe of the Firſt Line, coming up, gave their Fire upon the Enemy's Flank and Rear; and our Cavalry at the ſame time renewing their Charge in the Front, drove them in Diſorder thro' their own Lines with a very great Slaughter. By this time the Engliſh and Dutch Foot, under the Command of Lieutenant-General Ecle and Baron Freſhem, were ſharply engag'd in the Center, and broke thro' the Enemy's Firſt and Second Lines, bearing down all before them as far as the Walls of Almanza: But this Succeſs did not laſt long; for the Enemy's Squadrons of the Second Line fell in upon their Flank, and forc'd our Infantry back with great Loſs. Colonel Hill's and the Lord Mark-Ker's Regiments, who had been interlined with the Horſe of the Second Line, marched up, by Order of Major-General Lloyd, and attacked ſome Spaniſh Regiments to favour their Retreat.

The Enemy obſerving that the Cavalry of our Right did not advance with our Left Wing, order'd ſome Squadrons of their Left to attack the Right of the Portugueſe Horſe, which they did with ſo much Fury and Succeſs, that they utterly broke that whole Wing; by which means their Infantry was immediately ſurrounded, and moſt of 'em kill'd or taken Priſoners.

The Battle continued on our Left Wing; the Enemy ſtill charging us with freſh Squadrons, but without Succeſs: For our Horſe, both Engliſh and Portugueſe, favour'd by the Fire of the Engliſh Battalions that were interlined, broke the Enemy, driving 15 or 16 of their Squadrons into a Crowd, who retired to a riſing Ground in the Rear of their Line, but could not be brought to charge again.

The Enemy finding they endeavour'd, to no purpoſe, to break our Left with Horſe only, ſent for 9 Battalions, moſt of them French, and drew up before their Front Line of Horſe, in oppoſition to our Brigade of Foot, which conſiſted of Colonel Southwell's, Blood's, Wade's, and Mountjoy's, Regiments, and were reinforced by Lieutenant-General Stewart's Regiment from the Rear Line.

At the ſame time they brought up ſeveral freſh Squadrons to make another Charge upon our Left Wing of Horſe, who had ſuffer'd very much, and loſt moſt of the Officers that commanded Squadrons; Brigadier Carpenter being the only one that remained unhurt. The Count de Attalaya, who commanded the Portugueſe Horſe that were mixed with our Dragoons, was carried off wounded, after having at the Head of his Squadrons twice repulſed the Enemy. Our Troops in this Condition were not able to ſuſtain their Charges, and gave way; at which time the 9 French Battalions charged the Engliſh Brigade of Foot in Front and Flank, and entirely broke 'em. The two French Regiments that fell in upon their Flank being too far advanc'd, the Lord Tirawly order'd Colonel Roper, who commanded Maj. Gen. Harvey's Horſe, to attack 'em; which was done with ſo much Vigour, that they broke thro' them, and made them beg for Quarter, before the Enemy's Cavalry could come to their Aſſiſtance. The Enemy now had nothing remaining but to ſurround our Foot (which were broke on the Plain) and for ſome time gave no Quarter. At the ſame time Maj. Gen. Shrumpton, Brigadier Macartney, Col. Britton, Col. Hill, with ſeveral other Officers, who had engag'd in the Center, aſſembled the Stragglers of the Engliſh Regiments into a Body, and join'd ſome of the Dutch and Portugueſe, who had been rallied by Count d'Hona and Don Juan Emanuel, and form'd a Body of near 1000 Men.

Men, who retreated two Leagues; the Enemy's Horſe ſtill purſuing, tho' often repulſed by the Fire of our Foot. By the Care and Conduct of the Officers who commanded them, they retreated to the Hills: The Men being tir'd with the Fatigues of the Day, and wanting both Ammunition and Provitions, were unable to march farther; and the next Morning, being ſurrounded by 2 Lines of Foot, the Commanding Officers agreed to the ſame Capitulation that was granted to the French at Blenheim, and ſurrendred themſelves Priſoners to Count d'Alfelt.

The Enemy's Loſs, during the Action, was much greater than ours; but our Foot being at laſt broke, and expos'd to their Cavalry, were moſt of them kill'd, wounded or taken Priſoners. His Excellency the Earl of Galway was ſo cloſely engag'd with the Enemy's Horſe, that he received two Cuts in the Face, near his right Eye, which made him uncapable of acting for ſome time. Brigadier Killigrew being wounded in the firſt Aſſault, ſtill kept the Field, and was killed in a ſecond. Colonel Dormer, Roper, Lawrence, Green, and De Loche, were killed at the Head of their Squadrons, after having behaved themſelves with great Gallantry. Colonel Peirce, Mr. Hara, Son to the Lord Tirawly, wounded. Of the Foot, Colonel Hamilton, Woollet, and Mr. Neal, who commanded Regiments, were killed; the Lord Mark-Ker wounded in the Arm, and Col. Clayton in the Body. The Earl of Galway retreated with the Cavalry that remained, being about 3500, to Alcira, and has left there a Gariſon of Foot, and in Xativa, and is marched with the Marquis das Minas to the further ſide of the Ebro, near Tortoſa, in order to join his Catholick Majeſty's Forces, and defend the Principality of Catalonia: And ſince this unhappy Accident, the Catalans have renewed their Promiſes of Fidelity to King Charles. A good Gariſon is left in Alicant, and well provided with Neceſſaries; and, by the Aſſiſtance of our Fleet in the Mediterranean, we hope to preſerve the Places in our Poſſeſſion on the Sea Coaſt.

Leipſick, June 4. N. S. The King of Sweden frequently goes from Alt-Ranſtad to review the Regiments, which are in the greateſt readineſs to march. Strict Orders are prepar'd againſt marching over Meadows or Fields of Corn, and Care taken that there ſhall be as little Injury done to the Country as poſſible. The laſt Letters from Lublin bring Aſſurances to King Staniſlaus, that Means will be found to put off a new Election at leaſt two or three Months, in expectation that the King of Sweden may within that time come into their Neighbourhood, and put a ſtop to thoſe Proceedings. It is hoped that the Miſunderſtanding between the Imperial and Swediſh Courts may be amicably accommodated, ſuch Explanations having been made on the Emperor's ſide, as, 'tis believed, will appear ſatisfactory. The Queſtion whether King Auguſtus may continue to ſtile himſelf King of Poland is now in Debate, upon occaſion of a Credential Letter that the Pruſſian Miniſter hath offer'd to him without that Title; a Diminution his Majeſty hath not thought fit to admit. Hereupon Monſieur Hermeſin hath had a Conference with Count Pflug, and declared, that the King of Sweden cannot allow that Title to King Auguſtus, the contrary having been ſtipulated in the late Treaty, from whence his Majeſty will not ſuffer any ſuch Deviation to be made. In the mean time the Pruſſian Miniſter's Reception is deferr'd.

From the Duke of Marlborough's Camp at Meldert, June 9. N. S. On Monday the 6th Inſtant one of our Parties advanced beyond the Enemy's Grand Guard, and in their return met 25 of their Dragoons, commanded by a Lieutenant and a Cornet, who were coming towards our Camp for Intelligence. The Party attacked them with ſo much Succeſs, that they kill'd Six, took the reſt, with the Lieutenant and Cornet, Priſoners, and brought in 24 Horſes: And this Day a Party of 50 of our Horſe puſhed one of 70 of the Enemy, and purſu'd them almoſt into their Camp. Monſieur de la Motte, who has hitherto commanded a ſeparate Body of the Enemy towards Flanders, is now come and encamp'd within a League of their Army, with Eight Squadrons and Eight Battalions; ſo that they have now all the Troops 'tis poſſible for them to bring together in this Country. Our Army and that of the Enemy continue ſtill in their former Camp. We made this Day a general Forage, the Right Wing towards the Dyle, and the Left towards the Geete; and the whole is now come in without any Loſs.
